

A cityscape with various skyscrapers and buildings, partially obscured by a thick layer of white fog or mist. The sky is a clear, bright blue. The fog is most prominent in the lower half of the image, creating a sense of depth and atmosphere. The buildings are mostly modern, with glass facades and varying heights. The overall scene is clean and professional, suitable for a corporate document.

I. INTRODUCTION

“The regulations establish the taxpayer's obligation to value all the operations carried out with related entities or persons to the value of market”

The rules on transfer pricing originate in the OECD Directive and have been developed in different countries of the European Union with the consequent implementation in each of the countries.

The regulations on related-party transactions seek to prevent the use of prices other than normal market prices to prevent income from one entity to another which, as a general rule, has the practical effect of reducing or deferring the taxation of the income tax payable by the parties affected by the related party. At the international level, although the use of transfer pricing does not reduce the tax burden on all parties, these rules are necessary to prevent the movement of resources from one country to another.

The guiding principle of the rules governing such transactions is that the price to be paid within the relations between the different companies belonging to a group should be the price fixed under normal conditions between independent parties, or in other words, according to market value. This principle gives tax administrations the right to adjust transfer prices as soon as they occur between independent parties.

The basis of this regulation is the so-called 'Full Competition Principle' which essentially seeks to determine what the price of the transaction or the margins obtained by the parties would have been if all their transactions had been carried out within a competitive market, i.e. as if the transaction had been carried out with or between independent parties.

The majority of European Union and therefore Spanish tax legislations establishes special valuation rules for analyzing and valuing intergroup transactions. And the guiding principle is the one mentioned above, i.e. set between independent parties.

II. WHAT IS MEANT BY TRANSFER PRICING?

“The regulation applies to all companies with independence from its size.”

- Definition:
Transactions between entities from the same group, related party, must be valued at a market value.
- Market Value:
Market value shall be understood as the one which would have been agreed by independent individuals or entities under conditions of free competition.
- Administrative Capacity:
The Tax Authorities may verify that transactions between related parties have been valued at market value and shall make the appropriate valuation adjustments. Special emphasis of the concept of management capacity.
- Does transfer pricing regulation affect all companies?
Yes, no matter their size.
- Are all companies required to document them?
No. However, the valuation must be justified.
- Even if there is documentation of related-party transactions, can there be a penalty?
Yes, although there is freedom in the documentation, it must have a technical and expert content in the field of related-party transactions.
- If there is no documentation, apart from the reversal of the burden of proof of the price charged, can I be sanctioned?
Yes. 1,000 euros per data and 10,000 euros per group data.
- If there is documentation, what kind of penalty exists for providing inaccurate or false documents?
Firstly, if there is documentation prepared, the Authorities are the ones which should contradict the price applied and the penalty is:
For each piece of information 1,000 euros per data and 10,000 euros per group data.

- In which model should related-party transactions be reported?

As a novelty in 2017, related-party transactions over 250,000 euros must be reported on form 232, which should be filed by November of each year.

- Can the Tax Administration be asked to determine the valuation of related-party transactions carried out prior to their execution?

Yes, it will be valid for a period of 4 years.

- Who is required to document?

The companies that have operations related to the same entity and that exceed the amount of 250,000 euros.

- A company carries out several operations with the related entity; should the limit of 250,000 euros be taken into account for each of the individual or joint operations?

The documentation obligation is established at a joint level and by related entity.

III. WHO IS REQUIRED TO PREPARE THE DOCUMENTATION?

“Those entities that carry out operations between related entities that exceed €250,000 have the obligation to prepare the documentation.”

Companies are required to prepare documentation if they:

- A) Carry out transactions between related companies that exceed the amount of 250,000 euros in the tax period with the same related company or person.
- B) No matter the size of the company.

The Authorities have introduced 3 categories of documents depending on the turnover of the Group to which the taxpayer belongs:

1. Complete: Group and taxpayer documentation.
2. Simplified: Group documentation which turnover is less than 45 million Euros.
3. Simplified through normalized form: for groups which turnover is less than 10 million euros.

LOCALFILE: Taxpayer documentation. Compulsory for taxpayers with transactions with the same linked party that exceed the amount of 250,000 euros.

MASTERFILE: Documentation relating to the group. This documentation must be prepared by taxpayers whose turnover exceeds 45 million euros and will be unique for the whole group.

COUNTRY BY COUNTRY INFORMATION – FORM 231: It must be filed by the Parent Group Company whose turnover is 750 million euros.

This return is required for periods initiated from 1 January 2016 and the filing period will be annual, after the end of the tax period.

Documentation is not required, of both the group and the individual:

- A) Transactions between entities from the same group which file consolidated income tax returns.
- B) Those carried out with its members by Economic Interest Groupings and Temporary Business Associations.
- C) Those made in the field of public offerings for sale or public offers for the acquisition of securities.

IV. COMPARATIVE LAW

“The rules on related-party transactions seek to prevent the transfer of income from one entity to another through the use of prices other than the market prices.”

- Transfer Pricing Guidelines of 1995 with successive updates. Latest version of July 2010. OECD Guidelines Directive.
- The rules on related-party transactions seek to prevent the use of prices other than the normal market price from being used by transferred income from one entity to another which, as a general rule, has the practical effect of reducing or deferring the taxation of the CIT corresponding to the parties affected by the relationship.
- At the international level, these standards are necessary to prevent the movement of public resources from one country to another. We are finding that the subsidiaries/branches of foreign parents are subject to such regulations and therefore, in foreign companies are being implemented as mandatory transfer pricing regulations.
- At the international level:
 - The OECD Guidelines July 2010
 - The European Transfer Pricing Forum
 - Local legislations of the countries
- At the Spanish level:
 - The Corporate Tax Act
 - Corporate Income Tax Regulations
 - The Rules of Friendly Procedure
 - Jurisprudence

V. BASIC PRINCIPLES

“Penalties may be for lack of documentation, for inaccurate documentation or for value correction.”

- Principle of free competition (market value):

“Where the two (related) companies are, in their business or financial relations, bound by conditions accepted or imposed which differ from the ones that would have been agreed by independent companies, the profits which would have been obtained by one of the companies in the absence of such conditions, and which in fact have not been made because of them, may be included in the benefits of that company and subject to taxation accordingly.” Art. 9.1. Model Double Taxation Convention OECD

“Transactions between related persons or entities shall be valued at their normal market value. Normal market value shall be understood as that which would have been agreed by independent persons or entities under conditions of free competition.” Art. 18.1. LIS

- Burden of proof on the taxpayer: this type of transaction reverses the burden of proof on the taxpayer.
- Obligation to document operations
- Methodology: 5 different methods:
 - Comparable Free Price (CUP)
 - Resale Price
 - Increased Cost (Cost Plus)
 - Net Margin (NMT)
 - Distribution of Profit (Profit Split)
- Penalty regime: is sanctioned for lack of documentation, inaccurate documentation or valuation correction.

VI. LEGISLATION

- OECD Guidelines 1979, modifications of 1995
- RD 897/2001, of the 9th of July, by which the Corporate Income Tax Regulation, approved by RD 1777/2004, of 30 July, on matters relating to documentation obligations for related party of linked transactions.
- RD 1793/2008, of the 3rd of November, modification of the Corporate Income Tax Regulations.
- Law 27/2014, of the 27th of November, on Corporate Tax.
- Royal Decree 634/2015, of 10 July, approving the Corporate Income Tax Regulations.

VII. MOST SIGNIFICANT ASPECTS

- Simplify the documentation for those entities or groups of entities whose net turnover is less than 45 million euros.
- The perimeter of the linkage in the social-company sphere is restricted and stays at a 25% stake (previously it was 5% or 1% for listed companies).
- The hierarchy of methods contained in the previous regulation for determining the market value of related-party transactions is eliminated, and other methods and techniques of economic valuation are also permitted in the alternative, provided that they comply with the Principle of Free Competition.
- Included is the modification of the sanctioning regime that is less burdensome: pecuniary fix fine of 1,000 euros per piece of data and 10,000 euros per set of data, omitted or false.
- The remuneration paid by an entity to its directors and managers for the performance of these functions is no longer considered to be related-party transactions.
- The cases of linkage are eliminated (i) one non-resident entity in Spanish territory and its permanent establishments in said territory; (ii) and two entities in a fiscal group of cooperatives.
- The operations of the partners with the professional societies will be valued according to methods adjusted to the economic reality. The limit for not having to value the services of members of professional societies is reduced from 85% to 75% of the result, prior to the deduction of the remuneration of professional members.
- In the case of Spanish entities with a permanent establishment abroad, when the double taxation agreement is applicable, the estimated income from internal transactions carried out with the permanent establishment, valued at market value, will be included in the tax base.

For those entities that meet the requirements on turnover of small companies, this specific documentation can be understood to be completed through a standard document prepared by the Minister of Finance.

- ◆ With effect from 1 January 2015, it is expressly stated in the regulatory text that the market value of the transactions will be determined on the basis of the following parameters:
- ◆ The nature of the transaction and the conduct of the parties.
- ◆ The business strategy and/or any other circumstance that is relevant and on which the taxpayer may have had information.

The legislator has introduced 3 categories of documentation, depending on the amount of the Group's turnover to which the taxpayer belongs:

- ◆ Country-by-country report.
- ◆ General regime
- ◆ Regime abridged

VIII. WHICH ARE THE LINKED ENTITIES?

“Article 18.2 of the Corporate Income Tax Law establishes the type of entities that are considered linked.”

LINKED TRANSACTIONS (article 18.2 LIS)

- An entity and its directors or administrators.
- An entity and spouses or individuals related by family, partners or participants, directors or administrators.
- Two entities belonging to a group (article 42 of the Commercial Code).

IX. TAXPAYER OBLIGATIONS – FORM 232 REPORTING OBLIGATIONS IN RELATION TO RELATED-PARTY TRANSACTIONS

“The main obligation of taxpayers will be to determine the price of their related-party transactions based on the normal market value.”

The main obligation of taxpayers will be to determine the price of their related-party transactions based on the normal market value; in this case, it is the taxpayer who has the burden of proof.

Taxpayers will have to inform through Form 232 of the related-party transactions.

Form 232 must be filed within one month of the end of the ten-month period immediately following the close of the tax period to which the information to be supplied relates (article 4 of the regulation HFP/816/2017).

Therefore, when the period corresponds with the calendar year, this form must be filed in November of the following year.

In addition, taxpayers must prepare the documentation that supports the correct application of the principle of full competition, taking into account the complexity and volume of transactions.

In addition, the Documentation of the related transactions will be provided by request of the Tax Authorities from the voluntary deadline for filing the Corporate Tax Return as set out in article 13.4 of the Corporate Tax Regulations.

	Tax periods closed from 01/01/2015
Burden of proof	Taxpayer
Requirements documentation	Yes, according to RD 1793/2008 and RD 634/2015
Penalty System	Modification of the penalty system

X. DETERMINATION OF NORMAL MARKET VALUE

They must be compared:

- circumstances of transactions between related parties.
- with circumstances of transactions between comparable independent persons or entities.

Transactions are considered comparable when there are no differences between the two (price of the good or service, margin of the transaction).

Comparability analysis may also be carried out even if differences exist (if they can be eliminated with appropriate corrections).

XI. METHODOLOGY

“There are different valuation methods, some based on price and others based on the profit.”

1. COMPARABILITY ANALYSIS

The following circumstances will be taken into account:

1. Characteristics of the goods or services
2. Functions performed by each party
3. Risks assumed by each party
4. Contractual terms
5. Characteristics of the market
6. Business Strategies

Any absence of comparable transactions and the lack of consideration of any of the circumstances should be reported to be justified.

2. VALUATION METHODS

3. Resale price method
4. Profit split method
5. Transactional net margin method

1. WHAT ARE THE VALUATION METHODS?

Does it apply in reality?
 - Rentals
 - Interest on loans
 - Commissions for intermediation
 - Royalties
2. The cost-plus method: The cost-plus method consists of comparing the margin on direct and indirect costs incurred in the supply of goods or services in a related operation with the margin on direct and indirect costs incurred in the supply of goods or services in a non-related operation.
3. Resale price method 'resale price': The resale price method consists of comparing the resale margin obtained by the buyer of an asset (acquired in a related transaction) when reselling the asset in the context of an unrelated transaction with the resale margin obtained in unrelated purchase and resale transactions.
4. Net operating margin method (NMEC): The fixed net operating margin method based on an appropriate denominator (e.g. costs, sales, etc.) obtained by a company in the context of a related-party transaction with the fixed net operating margin based on the same denominator obtained in the margin of an unrelated transaction.
5. Method of allocation of profit (Profit Split): The method of allocation of profit consists of attributing to each associated undertaking participating in a related-party transaction the part of profit or loss generated by that transaction that an independent undertaking would expect to make in the context of a comparable, unrelated transaction.

The imposition of transfer pricing penalties is linked to the lack of correct, incomplete, inaccurate or false documentation.

- When transfer pricing documentation is not filed, or the documentation is incomplete or with wrong data, a tax penalty is calculated as the sum of 1.000 Euros per data and 10.000 Euros per group of data.

XVI. PUBLISHING OF THE GUIDELINESS OF THE OECD IN RELATION TO FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS

On February 11, 2020, the new transfer pricing guides for financial transactions were published giving continuity to Actions 4 and 8 to 10 of the 2015 BEPS Project.

The draft on the same subject has also been published, which was released for public discussion in July 2018. This report incorporates processing into financial transactions such as loans, cash pooling contracts, and other hedging operations.

The content of the OECD guidelines on transfer prices is updated and the treatment of these transactions is facilitated and clarified to both tax authorities and taxpayers.
